

Building the site

Contributed by Dave Thorup
Saturday, 11 March 2006

OK, so far the site is just hideous. Right now I'm really limited in what I can do with it, but that will change in the future. So far I've got some nice trees up under the title, a pic of me and one from Yellowstone.

The next thing to do is design some artwork I think. What exactly is a Cutterpillow though? I guess I'll figure it out eventually. For now I'll just stick with some good looking pictures.

There's just one problem with that though, the site layout builder doesn't let me change the size of the images for the title background and the corner image. I don't know why this is, but I won't be using the stupid site builder for too much longer. But for now, this is what I have to live with.